SERMON SERIES ON THE 12 DISCIPLES TO BEGIN ON JANUARY 18, 2026

When I was a child, I loved to read, especially biographies about famous people. When I would visit my grandmother Wooten's house, she had a small book entitled Jesus and the Twelve, a widely- distributed volume (I think as some sort of promotional item, maybe with encyclopedias). It was mainly a collection of portraits by Alberta Richards, who enlisted a wide collection of ordinary men (postmen, engineering students, machinists, etc.) who looked the way she envisioned the various disciples to pose for the portraits. Each picture had a brief description of the Apostles' lives and traditional stories of their mission endeavors and where they died.

The pictures were stunning. On many occasions, I would sit quietly in the den, thumbing through the pages, imagining what the twelve were really like. I was fascinated with their stories and the way Jesus took such a diverse group of men and bound them together in his mission ... and I continue to be these sixty-plus years later. As an adult, that book was the one thing I asked for from my grandmother's house.

So, some years ago I put together a series of sermons entitled There Were Twelve Disciples (that also included one entitled What About the Women?, which focused on the women disciples who played such a key role in Jesus' earthly ministry). It was my own attempt to "paint a portrait" that caught some of the uniqueness of each character. That sermon series has been one of the most well-received I have done in several church settings.

So, it seemed good to me to share it with you, in the hopes that, along the way, you will perhaps learn something new about the disciples and how Jesus could take such a disparate group of ordinary people and change the world. More than that, I hope you will see yourself and others a little clearer through our shared humanity with the disciples and that you will be encouraged.

Be sure to join us in worship on January 18 as we kick off the series with the introductory sermon, A Motley Crew. Then be here as often as you can as we look at each disciple one by one to see what we can learn from them.

Watch for the next edition of the Beacon for the schedule of the upcoming sermons.

Dr. Jim Wooten,
Interim Pastor
